God, Lies and Spies: Finding South Africa’s Future through its Past

John Matisonn
Journalist, Author

Monday, March 28, 2016 | 5:00-7:00PM | 166 Barrows

Matisonn began political reporting at the Rand Daily Mail in 1974, and received a prison sentence for refusing to divulge his source in a report about the South African Watergate scandal known as Muldergate.

After four years as a broadcast regulator in the Mandela administration and two as editorial director of the short-lived THISDAY newspaper, he became the United Nations’ Chairperson of the Electoral Media Commission in Afghanistan.

He returned from a second tour in Afghanistan to write God, Spies and Lies in Franschhoek, Western Cape, and now lives in Cape Town.